DESCRIBE A SPEECH YOU GAVE

When and whom did you give the speech?

The speech took place during my schooling when I was pursuing my 11th standard. At that time, my professor organized an intra-class speech competition to boost our self-reliance and polish our speaking skills. I spoke in front of my entire class for the foremost time and vanquish my stage fear.

What was the speech about?

My speech agenda was centred around the pros and cons of social media among young adults. It assisted me in representing my viewpoints about the application of social media. I also highlighted social media's significant impact on youngsters' lives and minds, empowering the audience with the knowledge to make informed decisions.

Why did you give the speech?

As previously mentioned, I grappled with stage fear and experienced self-consciousness when addressing large audiences. However, subsequent experiences proved instrumental in surmounting this fear. Despite initial apprehension, buoyed by the fervour of my peers and educators, I successfully delivered presentations. Furthermore, these instances imparted invaluable lessons on asserting one's perspective in public forums.

How do you feel about it?

Initially, I was apprehensive about addressing such a sizable audience, but my confidence soared as they began to cheer me. Following the speech, I felt grateful for the chance. It bolstered my self-assurance and diminished my public speaking anxiety.

DESCRIBE SOMETHING YOU TAUGHT TO YOUR FRIEND

What Did You Teach Him/Her?

During a casual talk on a Friday evening, my friend stated her desire to study philosophy and delve into the teachings of famous philosophers. Intrigued by her inquiry, I enthusiastically provided thoughts on some of my favorite philosophers, initiating an intriguing discussion. I subsequently suggested some notable books, articles, and sermons written by famous historical personalities. My objective was to extend her intellectual boundaries and instill a desire for future exploration.

When Was It?

It happened during the stressful period of my final semester examinations last year. Despite the flurry of academic obligations, the timing stands out vividly in my memory. My friend's frequent apologies for unwittingly diverting me from my studies acted as a poignant reminder of our conversation's timing.

How Long Was it For?

Our discussion extended far longer than two hours, delving deeply into philosophical issues. However, this initial session merely laid the framework for ongoing knowledge and opinion exchanges. Each encounter with a new philosophical masterpiece sparks new discussions, broadening our comprehension of various philosophers and their writings.

Explain How You Felt About it

I felt grateful to share the wisdom of these legends with someone who valued it. My acquaintance became a valuable companion, providing a secure area for me to express myself without fear of being judged. Socrates' words resonated with me: "All I know is that I know nothing." This interaction reinforced the value of humility and continuous learning.

The vivid people and ageless concepts in "Pride and Prejudice" are what make it so thrilling. Austen's keen social satire and lively conversation keep readers interested from beginning to end. Furthermore, the slow-burning relationship between Elizabeth and Mr. Darcy is both compelling and immensely rewarding, making it enjoyable to return to time and again.

DESCRIBE A LONG WALK YOU EVER HAD

When did this happen?

One cold Saturday afternoon, I proposed a plan to one of my close friends to go for a walk in the surrounding woods. Surprisingly, I didn't have to exert much effort in persuading her. Despite the awful weather, she arrived at my house within minutes to pick me up.

Where do you walk?

Our colony of houses is adjacent to the jungle and close to the hills. The woods are not particularly wild. Nevertheless, we are always advised to return home before or by 6 o'clock. Being tardy by five minutes past 6 could result in a lengthy lecture. Hence, we agreed to return before the dark, which was 30 past 5 during winter.

Who you were with?

My companion was one of my oldest neighbours. Naturally, we had been together since we were 6 years of age. Our bond had strengthened through these spontaneously planned excursions. These walks have also contributed to our growth in communication and understanding. Thus, she has become very dear to my heart.

Explain how you felt about this walk.

I felt truly blessed and deeply grateful for every step we took together. Particularly, it was the night after we returned when I found myself reflecting upon our adventure. I came to realize that despite the familiarity of the routes etched in my mind, the experience remained thoroughly enjoyable. Furthermore, each conversation with her amidst the woods served to enlighten me. I hold great admiration for her perspective and consider her to be an invaluable companion.

DESCRIBE A PARK OR GARDEN IN YOUR CITY

Introduction

When I think of a garden or a park, I prefer a large park where I can have a sense of exploration and today I am going to talk about a park which is next to my house.

Where it is?

Joggers Park is about a 5-minute walk from where I stay. It is a tribute to collaborative community work, since its development was funded by contributions from the whole society, ensuring that all children can play and enjoy. Spanning a vast expanse, Joggers Park offers ample space for recreation and leisure activities.

How can you go there?

The convenience of getting to Joggers Park is heavily dependent on where you start. If you're close, the easiest choice is to go for a stroll. However, among the neighboring buildings and residences, the park may appear somewhat hidden, necessitating prior information of its location. Despite its concealed character, Joggers Park is a calm sanctuary where I frequently seek solitude and relaxation.

How frequently you go there?

I visit this beautiful park at least once a week, if not more frequently. Our park is appreciated for its maple leaves in autumn and tulips in spring. Many tourists have posted pictures during the blossom season onto the internet, bringing more fame to the park and making it a fairly famous travel destination nowadays.

And explain why this is your favorite park.

What makes this park my favorite is that there are magnificent scenes like the streams which quietly flow surrounding the meadows and the wooden footpaths on top of crystal-clear water. To be very honest, every corner of the park is picturesque. Anyone who feels stressed out can find some inner peace inside this park.

Conclusion

I am not truly a nature lover but Joggers Park is the one that I would love to recommend to others. Its widely varied landscapes are so appetizing to the eyes. It works just by looking around this spot.
